Great Program In France Has German Hordes Bewildered

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 12.—(P)—American armor hammered around the left flank of the half-encircled German army in northwest France today and pushed southward well beyond the Loire to the Portentous accompaniment of bomb bursts on the Mediterranean coast.

The Germans meanwhile appeared to have taken an unexpected decision by throwing reinforcements into the potential trap below Caen, a reversal of their previous withdrawal preparations, possibly to keep the escape route open as long as possible.

The speed, extent and objectives of the American drives so befuddled the Germans that Allied headquarters rigidly continued its four-day blackout on news of specific progress, announcing, "the situation must remain obscure purely for security reasons."

It asked public patience, "because on secrecy depend the success of the Allied plan and the lives of American, British, Canadian and other Allied soldiers."

Assault French Coast

But a stupendous program was being unfolded behind the cloak of official mystery.

It was the second consecutive day that Allied air forces—tactical and strategic—heavily assaulted the French Mediterranean coast, with enemy radio stations between Nice and Marseille being singled out for particular and perhaps significant attention.

The American armor pouring through Nantes last reported ten miles south of the Loire river, about 450 miles from the Mediterranean.

On the flaming front below Caen in Normandy, the British and Canadians edged forward a mile and a half to two miles, threatening to close the drawstrings on a small pocket of Germans between the Orne and Laize rivers. The British also dug into the German's northern flank with a drive that won them high ground within three miles of the German anchor town of Conde Sur Noireau.

Stiffen Resistance
Coming up from the south, 33 miles below the British positions, the Americans were meeting stiffer resistance, east of Mortain and Sourdeval field dispatches said.

Only the supreme command and the participants knew whether the American drive was aimed primarily for Paris or to close the trap on the German seventh army, estimated at about 100,000 men. Exact whereabouts of the Americans, who four days ago swept past Le Mans, 110 miles from Paris, remained undisclosed.

One unconfirmed radio report said the Americans were in the outskirts of Paris, but there was no supporting evidence, and headquarters declined to give a hint.

Move Seems Strange
Field dispatches from the British front called the German reinforcement below Caen one of the strangest moves of the war and quoted British staff officers as being frankly puzzled at Field Marshal Gen. Guenther Von Kluge's gamble in throwing the bulk of the German armed forces in northwest Europe into such a threatening corridor.

"Undoubtedly, reinforcements are reaching the hard-pressed German divisions," one staff officer said. "Their quality is uncertain, but in some cases, at last, they are produced by milking other divisions or by switching reinforcements meant for other divisions."

German transport all around the front continued to take a heavy pounding from the air, but the Germans even sent back their vitally-needed front-line transport to bring up reinforcements as the battle flamed on in sweaty mid-summer heat. Repeatedly the Germans put in counterattacks to keep the "roof" from caving in on them, but the British in each case held firm or made bloody gains.

The Germans officially acknowledged that they had withdrawn from Mortain and Sourdeval, on their left flank, in the face of an American drive spearheaded by two tank divisions and three motorized infantry formations.

The Germans also admitted the Americans were beyond Alencon, 30 miles north of Le Mans.

Reds Crash Through Nazi Fortifications

Reach Biebrza River Marshes In Added Gains

By TOM YARBROUGH
LONDON, Sunday, Aug. 12.—(P)—Gen. G. F. Zakharov's second White Russian army yesterday smashed six miles through strong German fortifications northeast of Warsaw, and reached the Biebrza river marshes, last big obstacle separating the Russians from the famous First World War battleground of the Masurian lakes inside German East Prussia.

In the north three other powerful Soviet armies tightened their trap on possibly 300,000 German troops pinned against the Baltic sea, and one of these Red armies suddenly lashed out westward toward Liepaja, west Latvian port, and toward Memel, German seaport at the northern tip of German East Prussia.

A Moscow communique announced the capture of 610 towns and villages, more than half of them by the adjoining armies of General Zakharov and Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's first White Russian troops.

The latter army was within four miles of the Warsaw-Bialystok railway on a broad front between the besieged Polish capital and beyond the Bug river as the Russians wheeled toward East Prussia.

Driving northwest along both sides of the Bialystok-Lyck railway leading to East Prussia's southeastern corner, Zakharov's troops captured Klewianka, only seven miles east of the railway where it crosses the Biebrza river. Klewianka itself is only 18 miles from the East Prussian border and other troops fighting along the Augustow canal farther north are within 11 miles of the frontier.

West of Bialystok other units under Zakharov rolled to within 20 miles east of Lomza with the capture of Szafranki, and 24 miles southeast of that big German stronghold with the seizure of Wnory rail station.

Rokossovsky's troops, spread out over a broad front between the Bug river and Warsaw, also were threatening to collapse the last big German defenses before the southern border of East Prussia. Dabrowica, 16 miles northeast of Warsaw, and less than four miles from the Warsaw-Bialystok railway, fell to the Soviet forces in this big wheeling movement.

Other villages captured on the battleline extending toward the Bug river, included Olechny, 55 miles northeast of Warsaw, and only 14 miles southeast of Ostrozna, 16 miles southeast of Warsaw.

The latter city along with imperilled Lomza are the main German bastions before East Prussia.

Berlin broadcasts said the German situation west of the Vistula river, 100 miles south of Warsaw where the Russians have established a great bridgehead pointed toward German Silesia 75 miles beyond, "still was grave."

The Germans, threatened with a splitting of their front between Warsaw and Krakow in southern Poland, were putting up a furious fight on the sun-baked plains, realizing that a Soviet breakthrough here would find the Russians soon spilling into Germany itself.

In southern Estonia Gen. Ivan Malenkov's third Baltic army rolled on westward beyond Pskov important rail junction which fell under the impact of his resumed offensive Friday.

Major Success For Eisenhower
LONDON, Aug. 12.—(P)—Max Krull, military commentator for the German news agency DNB said tonight the American breakthrough and mobile offensive in France was "a major success for Eisenhower."

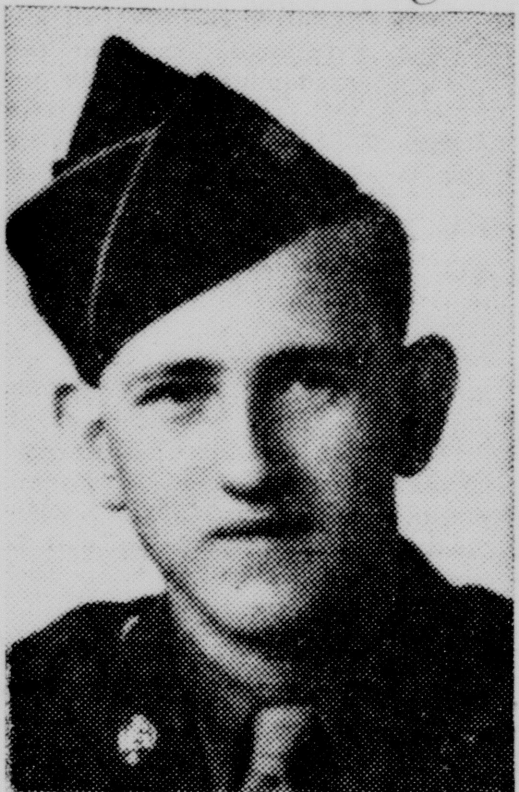

The German radio speaker added that "the battles are still in the initial stages of a great war of movement, and cannot yet be said to have reached the stage of an open battle. It is not even clear yet where Von Kluge thinks of taking up the battle with his operational reserves, which already are employed on a minor scale near Le Mans and on the Loire."

Revenue Men Checking For Federal Stamp

Where None Is Seen On Car Owners Given Summons

Many motorists in Sedalia Saturday were surprised to find attached to their car a federal summons, notifying them to appear in Room 5, of the Internal Revenue department, new post office building Fourth street and Lamine avenue. These summons are being placed on motor vehicles which do not have clearly displayed the 1944-45 federal used tax stamp.

The new stamp must be purchased for all motor vehicles, including motorcycles, trucks, passenger automobiles, or all vehicles used commercially or privately.

Purple is the color of the new stamp, and it costs $5, and can be purchased at the post office. This used tax stamp was due July 1, 1944.

Several agents of the Internal Revenue department arrived in Sedalia early Saturday morning and began circulating throughout the city. Where a stamp did not appear, a summons was placed on the car.

Summons Must Be Answered
It was explained by one of the agents, the summons must be answered by the person receiving it. In other words, a car owner may have purchased the stamp, but failed to place it on the windshield of the car instead putting it in his or her pocketbook, the glove compartment of the vehicle, or at home, but he or she must appear and give reason why it was not placed in the proper place on the vehicle.

A $25 fine can be assessed by the government against any person who fails to appear at the Internal Revenue office in the post office building, by the time designated on the summons. Upon appearance of those who haven't obtained their stamps they will be compelled to purchase the $5 stamp and no fine assessed, while others will be instructed where and how to place their stamps on their vehicle.

Mower Severs Leg Of Child

Douglas Griswold, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Griswold of near Fortuna, suffered the loss of one leg last Monday, when it was so severely severed by a mowing machine while he was playing in the weeds, it was necessary to amputate it.

His father was cutting the weeds, and the child, in his play, ran through the tall weeds which hid him from his father's view. He ran in front of the machine, and the leg was almost severed. He was taken to the Eckhoff clinic at Versailles and later to a hospital in Boonville, where the leg was amputated between the ankle and knee.

U. S. Destroyer Escort Sunk

Fiske Down In Atlantic When Hit By Torpedo

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(P)—The destroyer escort Fiske was sunk by an enemy torpedo recently in the Atlantic, the navy announced today.

The brief announcement gave no indication of where the Fiske was hit by the torpedo launched from a German U-Boat.

Next of kin of all casualties aboard the vessel which was under command of Lt. John A. Comly, 27, have been notified, the navy said. Comly is listed as a survivor.

The 300-foot Fiske is one of the hundreds of new destroyer escorts being turned out with production-line speed for operation in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

Small but deadly, the destroyer escorts are used principally for convoy operations against submarines, but little information has been disclosed about this type of ship.

The navy gave no indication of the number of casualties among the approximately 150 men aboard the Fiske.

The Fiske was built by the consolidated Steel Corporation at Orange, Texas, and was commissioned, August 23, 1943.

The loss of the Fiske raises to 175 the number of American warships lost since the war started. This includes 134 sunk, 32 listed as overdue and presumed lost, and nine destroyed to prevent capture.

Pilot Dies But Patients Rescued
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 12.—(P)—An army hospital evacuation plane loaded with sick or wounded soldiers caught fire during a take-off here today, resulting in death to the pilot, but 21 patients were removed to safety by nurses and crewmen.

Second Lt. Romaine W. Yates, South Burlington, Vt., died several hours after flames engulfed the plane's cockpit when the craft careened from a runway at Municipal Airport.

Quick action by the fourth ferrying group's fire and crash crew prevented the flames from reaching the passenger compartment, from which nurses and the plane's crewmen speedily removed the patients.

The ship had stopped here for refueling enroute to deliver the patients, just back from the fighting fronts, to an Oklahoma hospital.

Must Be Prepared Against Any Future Japanese Aggression

Sgt. Haller Has Broken Leg

"One doesn't have to be in combat to get hurt," writes Sgt. A. N. Haller, first armored-vehicle gunner on a B-17 Flying Fortress, stationed somewhere in Central England, to his wife, Mrs. Haller, the former Miss Annalye Shoemaker, at her home 830 West Sixth street.

SGT. A. N. HALLER

"Two of the fellows in my crew and myself," he writes, "were given passes the other day, so we got on our bicycles, (only means of transportation) and rode to London."

"On the way back to the field, it was growing dark and we couldn't see very well. I ran into a broken concrete guide post which was in the road, throwing me from my bike and fracturing my right leg. I'll be in the hospital for two weeks or more and the cast must remain on my leg for a month. I believe the Captain was right when he said there were more casualties from bikes than planes over here."

Sgt. Haller has been in combat, but censorship will not permit him to state the number of missions he has been on.

Highlights Of FDR's Speech

BREMERTON, Wash., Aug. 12.—(P)—Highlights of President Roosevelt's speech at the Puget Sound Navy yard tonight:

"We are utterly opposed to aggression or sneak attacks —but we, as a people, are insistent that other nations must not under any circumstances through the foreseeable future commit such attacks against the United States. Therefore it is essential that we be fully prepared to prevent them for all time to come."

"The word and honor of Japan cannot be trusted."

"We have no desire to ask for any possession of the United Nations, but I am confident (they will) be glad to join with us in protection against aggression and in machinery to prevent aggression."

"It is important that we have forward bases nearer to Japan. The same thing is true in regard to the defenses of all the American republics from Mexico past the Panama canal and all the way down to Chile."

"The war is well in hand, but I cannot tell you, if I knew, when the war will be over either in Europe or in the Far East or the war against Japan."

"It will be over the sooner if the people of this country will maintain the making of the necessary supplies and ships and planes. By so doing we will hasten the day of peace."

"Today the Hawaiian Islands are no longer a mere outpost. They constitute a major base from which front line operations are being conducted."

Sugar Stamp 33 Be Valid Sept. 1
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(P)—Sugar stamp No. 33 in war ration book four will be valid Sept. 1 for buying five pounds of sugar, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

The stamp will be good indefinitely although it is OPA policy to validate a sugar stamp every 2½ months.

Other sugar stamps usable now are No. 30, 31, 32 as well as the "canning sugar" stamp No. 40.

Sedalian At Picnic In China

CHINA—G. I.'s find a bit of difficulty in manipulating chopsticks at a picnic sponsored by the American Red Cross in China. The picnic followed a moonlight sampan trip down the river and a visit to an ancient temple. Picnickers include, left to right: Madame Lee; Margaret Lea, Red Cross workers from Manhasset, L. I.; Sgt. Loeber, AAF, SSO, China; Madame Cheng-Kao; Madame Hsu; Cpl. Joe Voelker, Philadelphia, Pa.; William Baslee, Sedalia, Mo.; Leslie Raynor, Santa Monica, Cal.; Lt. Guy Miles, Nashville, Tenn.; Sgt. James O'Neal, Milwaukee, Wis.; Sgt. Paul Tenz, Madame Goo, Miss Scheer, and Dr. C. Y. Hsu.

Arriving at a temple, which has withstood the vagaries of man's devotion and warring through the ages, instead of hearing weird songs and ancient chants as they might have expected, the boys danced to the music of Tommy Dorsey and Harry James. Just a few of the phonograph records brought for the occasion.

"Imagine swing in a monastery," was the GI's comment.

A real American picnic lunch—fish, potato salad, hard boiled eggs and coffee—was combined with typical Chinese dishes, Egg Foo Yong, and fried rice. And the boys ate it all with chopsticks.

"Just like home with a Chinese twist," was their only observation for the Chinese for centuries.

President Says Word And Honor Of Japan Cannot Be Trusted

By HOWARD FLIEGER

BREMERTON, Wash., Aug. 12.—(P)—President Roosevelt came home from a 15-day inspection of the Pacific war zone tonight to declare the United Nations must prepare permanent defenses against any future aggressions by the Japanese.

"The word and honor of Japan cannot be trusted," he declared.

The President came into dock at this huge navy yard about 4 p. m. (Pacific war time), ending a war tour that began when he left the Marine base at San Diego, Calif., on July 21—a day after his fourth-term nomination by the Democrats.

During his absence he visited Pearl Harbor, where he conferred with the war chiefs of the Pacific, and inspected military bases in the Aleutians.

He brought a laugh when he said he played hooky near Juneau, Alaska, long enough to sneak in three hours of fishing. The result: One halibut and one flounder.

Permanent Pacific defenses must be obtained, Mr. Roosevelt said, to protect this hemisphere from Alaska to Chile. It is important, he added, that we have permanent bases nearer to Japan.

Not After Possessions
"We have no desire to ask for any possessions of the United Nations," he said, "but the United Nations who are working so well with us in the winning of the war will, I am confident, be glad to join with us in protection against aggression and in machinery to prevent aggression."

"With them and with their help, I am sure that we can agree completely so that Central and South America will be as safe against attack from the South Pacific as North America is going to be from the North Pacific itself."

As for Japan, the President said: "It is an unfortunate fact that years of proof must pass before we can trust Japan and before we can classify Japan as a member of the society of nations which seek permanent peace and whose word we can take."

No Guess On War's End
The President said that during his absence—he left Washington July 13—he kept in close touch with developments in the capital and on all war fronts. But he didn't offer a guess on the war's end.

No word or politics entered his speech, delivered from the base on a gun mount of the destroyer which brought him into the heart of this bustling navy yard. His visible audience, consisted of sailors, navy officers and workers who lined the dockside to hear the chief executive's first speech since he accepted the Democratic renomination on July 20.

"The self interests of our Allies will be affected by fair and friendly collaboration with us," Mr. Roosevelt said. They too will gain in national security. They will gain economically. The destinies of the peoples of the whole Pacific will for many years be entwined with our own destiny. Already there are stirring among hundreds of millions of them a desire for the right to work out their own destinies, and they show no evidence of seeking to over-run the earth—with one exception.

"That exception is and has been for many, many years that of Japan and the Japanese people—because whether or not the people of Japan itself know and approve of what their lords have done for nearly a century, the fact remains that they seem to be giving hearty approval to the Japanese policy of acquisition of their neighbors and their neighbors' lands, and a military and economic control of as many other nations as they can lay their hands on."

Mr. Roosevelt said it is "an unfortunate fact" that the world cannot trust Japan, and added:

"It is an unfortunate fact that years of proof must pass before we can trust Japan and before we can classify Japan as a member (Please turn to Page 4, Column 4)

Crossroads Comment

by G.H.S.

The Perils of Over-Optimism—

A wave of optimism over impending end of the war with Germany has swept across every Allied nation. September, October and November are named as months for the finale. Progress of the armies, hints of national leaders tend to encourage the prediction.

Elaborate plans for Victory Day are being made now. The public is just about ready to burst wide open with enthusiasm over the "nearness" of the war's end.

But—what if the war drags on through November, even December or January which seems utterly impossible?

Once past November, war's continuation will inspire a feeling of disillusionment, a let-down in public morale. And that is just what the Nazis hope for. Their own propaganda today tends to keep anticipation of Allied victory high, while leaders craftily encourage their armies to resist past the time of the hopeful deadline.

If the balloon of Allied anticipation blows up, Germany will be in a more favorable position to offer overtures for peace and expect to have them received more favorably by a disappointed people clamoring for a peace that escaped their grasp in September, October or November.

Some of the same sort of monkey business occurred preceding the end of World War I. So, let's be on guard against over-optimism and recall the words of Cervantes in Don Quixote:

"Many count their chickens before they are hatched; and where they expect bacon, meet with broken bones."

The Smiles Could Be Diabolical Ones—

Those bland but exultant smiles on the faces of Sedalia business men arriving at their offices in the morning may have been animated by the exhilarating experience of each having picked a bushel of tomatoes and left their wife at home to can them on a hot August day.

Sedalia's Leaning Tower—

Current in recent war dispatches have been stories about the leaning tower of Pisa. Parents who have the discouraging problem of explaining to junior why it leans and doesn't fall over, may have their burden lightened by taking the quizzical youngster to Liberty park. For purposes of demonstrating something comparable to the leaning tower of Pisa they may observe the decorative stone column at the left of the entrance on Third and Park avenue. However, junior should be warned not to try any Galileo experiments from the top of it. There's no guarantee it won't fall some day.

A Few Forgotten Men Left—

Ninety per cent of those who voted in a St. Louis precinct in the primary election described themselves to election officials as illiterates and voted the Republican machine ticket, according to testimony at an investigation. What! After twelve years of New Dealism's crusade on behalf of the forgotten man, how come they neglected that bunch of illiterates?

Bad Luck or Good Luck—

Those who are inclined to be superstitious over bad luck omens might take heart over the old saying that bad luck often brings good luck.

A personal experience tends to prove this. Coming in from the tomato patch a black cat crossed my path as I approached the back door. Poof, I thought, that's not bad luck for me—those silly superstitions.

A few moments later I entered my automobile to drive down town. Just as I was about to start the motor, a neighbor woman came running across the lawn waving a paper.

"Did you know you had a flat tire," the neighbor asked. "No, I didn't," I replied. "Well, I thought so, because it looked like you were going to drive off."

Now, was the black cat responsible for the bad luck of having a flat tire. Then how do you account for the good luck of saving the tire from ruin by having observed neighbor women sitting on their front porch just at the right time to prevent a catastrophe like the loss of a tire, especially when the only spare is in a shop undergoing repairs?

Simply that good luck often follows bad luck. And good luck never comes too late.

Lights and Shadows—

The Rev. Sam Jensen told a story at Kiwanis about the bank cashier who wrote a note to one of the bank's customers: "Your account appears to be overdrawn." To which the customer replied, "Don't trust appearances."

Something like that might explain recent pictures of President Roosevelt that would indicate he was mere skin and bones and ready to give up the ghost, especially the photo taken in the railroad car when he made his acceptance speech. Lights and shadows must have played a tricky role in portraying the president unfavorably from a health standpoint. A few weeks later we notice pictures of F.D.R. taken in Hawaii. In them he looks pretty hale and hearty. He might be a bit tired, but he's far from being a customer for the hospital, judging from the latest snap shots taken out in the open which are more natural than those taken with the aid of flash bulbs.

Adolph, The Rascal—

Adolph Hitler certainly is a rascal. By shooting and hanging all his generals and those slated for after-the-war trials, he is deliberately making unnecessary a post-war showdown. He certainly is establishing a corner on morbidity. Can it be that he is jealous of sharing the spot light with his fellow Nazis during trials of the war guilty and is saving himself for the sole piece de resistance.

How The Japs "Got That Way"—

Appearing in the Sedalia Democrat forty years ago—August 12, 1904—was the following news item:

JAPANESE VIGOR

It Comes From Personal Cleanliness and Drinking Much Water

The Japanese are allowed to be among the very strongest people on earth, says the Medical Record. They are strong mentally and physically, and yet practically they eat no meat at all.

The diet which enables them to develop such hardy frames and such well balanced and keen brains consists wholly of rice, steamed or boiled, while the better-to-do add to this Spartan fare fish, eggs vegetables and fruits.

For beverages they use weak tea, without sugar or milk, and pure water, alcoholic stimulants being but rarely indulged in. Water is imbibed in what we should consider prodigious quantities—to an Englishman, indeed, the drinking of so much water would be regarded as madness. The average Japanese individual swallows about a gallon daily a divided doses.

The Japanese recognize the beneficial effect of flushing the system through the medium of the kidneys, and they also cleanse the exterior of their bodies to an extent undreamed of in Europe or in America.

Another—and perhaps this is the usage on which the Japanese lay the greatest stress—is that deep, habitual, forcible inhalation of fresh air is an essential for the acquisition of strength, and this method is sedulously practiced until it becomes a part of their nature.

After Forty Years—

Well, perhaps the Japanese are not big meat eaters, but they've been eating a lot of crow lately. After forty years practice drinking "prodigious quantities" of water they are well equipped to consume plenty of Pacific salt water after their thousands of boats are knocked out from under them by American naval ships and bombers. And as for forcible inhalation of fresh air they probably did not realize to what a practical end this habit would be used. There will be a lot of forcible inhalation and holding of breaths when U. S. bombers get going with regularity over Tokyo.

Considering the Japanese frequent bathing complex, a fellow staff member remarks that perhaps the habit became so pronounced that the Japs have washed their strength away.

Two Paths To Follow—

Merely as an experiment the past week I started out one day looking for trouble, finding it, complaining about it, pointing the finger of accusation at all and sundry for government mismanagement, criticizing the boys bitten by the power bug, etc., etc.

The following day I started out looking for only the pleasant things of life; moderately complimentary to those who deserved it, smiling instead of frowning, seeing good in everything, evil in nothing.

The third day the sun rose as usual and set as usual. In between, people moved about their usual tasks, some complaining, some not. My own conflicting attitudes of mind the days previously had not affected the movements of the sun, moon or stars. The routines of work and play by other individuals were about the same. The general picture of life in action was unchanged.

On the other hand, individual behavior does create a chain of circumstances that may be added to link by link affecting the lives of other people. Such a chain may become a fettering device or a strengthening support.

A thoughtlessly spoken word of harshness may change the whole life course of an individual. And the latter's behavior may divert others from their paths until lives are wrecked or lost and material things destroyed.

Similarly a kindly spoken word may change the whole life course of an individual. And the latter's behavior may divert others from their paths until lives are saved or rejuvenated and material things created.

When it comes to a choice of conduct in any given situation, tolerance and self-control are always the signposts to recognize and follow.

"The Drinker" Comes To Life—

Remember last week's article on "The Drinker?"

Who could have thought it would be put to practical use the very morning of publication and even more oddly, that I would have heard of the incident.

A very likeable sort of fellow had one beer too many last Saturday night. He managed to get to bed alright, but had to get up in the middle of the night. Not wanting to disturb his wife he tried to find the door in the dark. Finally he gave up and appealed: "Honey, I guess you better turn on the light for me." When the lights went on the dizzy victim of too much amber juice found himself on the opposite side of the room from the doorway, trying his best to go out through the wall.

There were no cross words. But Sunday noon when hubby sat down to dinner, there in the plate in front of him, was a clipping from Cross Roads Comment on "The Drinker."

So They Say

Restrictions will be terminated after the war because Congress has no desire to keep them no matter who is president.—Sen. Alben Barkley of Kentucky.

In many cities the schools refuse to open their buildings after 3 o'clock and in most cities the facilities are not used in the summertime. We certainly need more imaginative people in our school systems.—Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, American Social Hygiene Association educational consultant.

If a person has enough malicious dislike of another, usually the former can readily build up a case of immorality against the latter.

Here is history in terms of the common man.

approve projects okayed by the Army or Navy, and in this case Capt. W. J. Hines, U. S. Navy, San Francisco office, wrote to Philip Boyd, head of the lumber division, asking him to "give early consideration to this application." Also, Col. Fred G. Sherrill, lumber procurement officer for the army, navy and Maritime Commission in Washington, telephoned H. E. Holman of the lumber division, telling him he considered the project a good one and was ready to write him a letter to that effect if desired.

Holman, however, spurned the army's okay.

Later Holman, talking to an official of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, accidentally dropped a remark which may be the giveaway as to why the big lumber boys in the WPB lumber division don't want the Tehama tract developed.

"The competition would be too tough," Holman remarked, then suddenly correcting himself. "I mean, the competition in getting equipment."

However, second-hand equipment to cut the tract is already available, and the WPB lumber moguls know it. They have taken another delaying step by sending Huntington Taylor to make a manpower survey of the area, despite the fact that this is the business of the War Manpower Commission, not the WPB.

Meanwhile, lumber continues one of the scarcest war materials in the nation, much more acute than steel or aluminum.

NOTE: Chief of the lumber division is Philip Boyd of the giant Weyerhaeuser Co., one of the biggest in the country. Assistant chief is Jack Winton of the Winton Lumber Co., which once tried to buy the Tehama tract.

Better Break For G.I. Joes
The War Department finally has decided to give G.I. Joes returning from overseas a real break.

For months, the War Department has been deluged with complaints from returning dough-boys that they were herded into camps, given brief furloughs, and then shipped out again without even so much as a physical examination. Some vets have protested that, after being overseas for a long time, they couldn't even get furloughs after returning to this country.

Meanwhile, returning air corps men have received magnificent

THE EISENHOWER BOYS

II

ONE of the Eisenhower brothers once asked his mother, "How, Mother, did you ever manage to bring us up?"

"Didn't you ever catch on?" she asked confidentially. "Don't you remember there was always lots of work to do around the place, and that you were always busy doing it?"

The six Eisenhower brothers learned, and learned early, that success in life must be earned; that nothing worthwhile can be gained save through effort. All the boys had regular assignments of work. Thus their family income was supplemented by home-grown vegetables and fruit, with dairy products and poultry produced by mother and sons. This work required of the boys was also a deliberate technique of their mother's. She was all too aware that idle, healthy, fun-loving lads are likely to get themselves into serious trouble. She provided them with disciplined, useful outlets for their healthy energies.

Each of the boys had assigned chores, but these were changed every week to avoid boredom. For instance, the boys took turns by weeks in getting up at 5:30 in the morning to build the kitchen fire and put on the mush, then driving their father to work. They took turns in selling and delivering eggs, chickens, vegetables and fruit. The money, of course, was turned over to the family "banker," who was the father.

The older boys took jobs on neighboring farms or in the Belle Springs Creamery, helping finance the growing family. Arthur, the oldest boy, is reported to be the only one of the six who didn't milk the cow. Always dignified and careful of his dress, he preferred to do extra work to make up for not doing his share of the milking.

To understand Dwight today—his absolute lack of pretension, his genuine friendliness, his talent, amounting to genius, for handling men of all types and making them almost worship him, his tough "fighting heart"—you have to understand his upbringing as one of six boys. No one raised with five sharp-eyed, sharp-tongued brothers is likely to have much pretense left in him by the time he leaves school.

DWIGHT was "just about the most normal boy" you could imagine, according to his brother, Milton. If there was any clean fun, he was in it. Several of his companions in those days claim he had a temper which he managed to keep pretty well under control. He was strong and healthy—quite notably strong—though his brother Edgar, almost two years older than he, always "licked" him when they scuffled. After Dwight got to West Point, he took up scientific boxing and wrote to Edgar, challenging him to a scrap. Edgar, however, had by that time become an undergraduate at the University of Washington (where he took his law degree) and was better prepared to do his scrapping with words than with fists; he declined Dwight's offer.

Dwight used to swim in a hole in Mud Creek, which meanders through Abilene. In the winter, if and when the stream froze over, he played hockey—or "shiny" as they called it—on the ice, using a treatment. Returning combat fliers have been sent to rest homes and rehabilitation centers, are handled with kid gloves, given the best of food, medical treatment and psychiatric attention.

Now, Gen. Marshall at long last has taken steps to equalize things for the boys who fight on the tin can as a puck. When he grew older, he "graduated" to the Smoky Hill River, where the older boys took their sport, fishing and swimming. He attended Lincoln Grade School in Abilene and was considered one of the best athletes in school.

WHEN soldiers came to Abilene they ask one question: "Where is the house where General Eisenhower lived?" Though it is a considerable walk from the center of town, day after day groups of uniformed men stroll to gaze at the modest boyhood home of their hero—hoping also to gain a sight of the mother.

The visitors see a white, two-story dwelling of simple architecture, with bowers of roses in the well-kept yard. It is like thousands of other houses in the villages of the Middle West, a lean-to at one side, a porch in front.

Inside you find a thoroughly homey atmosphere. There are chairs and tables fifty years old, the walls nearly covered with photographs of the family—most of them of "Ike" in various poses and some of the entire group of six sons. The parlor has a davenport and some easy chairs with books here and there. Portraits of father and mother—and more poses of the sons. Somehow the spirit of parent-son relationship seems to be present more here than in ordinary homes.

The Eisenhowers are distinctly a "family." The family is the basic unit, within which the individual Eisenhowers have their being, and it is highly cohesive. The boys still think of themselves more as a family than as individuals. When any of them does anything outstanding (and all of them are continuously doing outstanding things), he thinks first of how pleased the family will be, and derives his greatest pleasure from that. The boys keep in close touch by correspondence, and each of them has made an effort—usually successful—to visit his mother in Abilene at least once a year.

To know General Eisenhower, one must meet his mother. A gentle old lady, with firm faith in God and man, her silver hair glistering in the sunlight, her hands folded in resignation, Mother Eisenhower awaits in her eighty-third year for the end of the war and the return of her famous son.

When one looks upon this kindly countenance, with its benevolent ground. He has signed an order under which General Somervell, chief of the Army Service Forces, will take over scores of large hotels and summer resorts where returning "dogfaces" can go for rest and rehabilitation. All members of the army ground forces returning from overseas will be eligible for this special care, will also be assured psychiatric advice and reasonable furloughs.

"A day in Thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." (Psalm 84).

Transfusions Save His Life

Holden Youth
Wounded in Front
Line at Saipan

By Sgt. Ellsworth A. Shiebler,
Marine Combat Correspondent

U.S. NAVAL HOSPITAL, Shoe-maker, Calif. — For over 24 hours Marine Private First Class John T. Cantrell, Jr., of Holden, Mo., lay wounded on the front lines at Saipan. Trapped between Jap and Marine crossfire the 19-year-old leatherneck was really in a spot. No corpsman could get to him and the pain of his wound was so intense he was unable to move.

"I was lying on my stomach, waiting to advance," reported Private First Class Cantrell. "Japs ahead were laying down a heavy barrage of machine gun fire and it was slow going."

"Suddenly I felt a sharp sting in my right thigh. A Jap sniper in a tree behind me had my range. I realized I couldn't stay there so I started to crawl away. Then came a second shot. This time it felt as though I'd been hit with a sledge hammer. The bullet struck only a few inches away from the first wound."

"I turned to look for the Jap but couldn't see any sign of him. For some reason he didn't fire again."

Unable to Walk
"I was unable to walk and remained still, hoping a corpsman would come. It was a long time before one found me. I lay there the rest of the afternoon, all night and part of the following day. Finally a corpsman came and with the help of another Marine, carried me to a nearby tank trap where I received a shot of morphine. I dozed off, wondering why I hadn't already bled to death and never expecting to wake up."

"Next thing I knew stretcher bearers were carrying me back to the aid station where several blood transfusions undoubtedly saved my life."

The Missouri Marine, also a Tarawa veteran, is married to Mrs. Lula Lee Potter Cantrell, of Holden. He has a 15-month-old daughter, Linda Gail, whom he has never seen. Private First Class Cantrell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cantrell, Sr., also live in Holden.

Lt. Laura Collins, Army Nurse, Works Hard, But Loves Her Job

Lieut. Laura Collins, 23, of the Army Nurse Corps, who is serving in an evacuation hospital somewhere in France, in an inspiring letter received last week by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Collins, 911 East Sixth street, makes an earnest appeal for those on the home front to continue in their efforts.

"Don't let down," she admonishes. "There is still so much to be done." In the letter she gives an appealing description of the wounded men brought into the hospital, particularly commenting on their asking if there "isn't someone worse off who should be cared for first." They never complain and they apologize for being dirty and unshaven—these fighting, brave American sons who suffer injuries on the battle fields.

Lieut. Collins, who was called into service in the Army Nurse Corps in January of 1943, sailed the first of October for overseas and was stationed in England near London until less than a month ago when she was sent over to France with a general hospital unit. After going into service she served at Camp Crowder and was stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., before being sent to a port of embarkation.

Calm Trip Across
In her first letter after landing in France she told of a calm trip across the channel and described the beauty of poppy fields, and in contrast, the scenes of desolation wrought by war. She also remarked upon the constant roar of planes overhead, flying in great masses above the orchard where her tent is pitched.

Following is her second letter, written August 1, in which she tells of her experiences and observations at the evacuation hospital:
"I'm really having an experience of my lifetime. A couple of nights ago, just as I was getting ready to hit the hay, our chief nurse informed me that I was to go on detached service with six other of our nurses to an evacuation hospital. So—I got packed in exactly 15 minutes flat—and here I am. I have never worked so hard and enjoyed myself so much in all my 23 years. It is simply wonderful. We work twelve hours from 7:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m., and right now I'm so tired that I don't know if I'll get this finished."

Food Is Better
"We have better food than we were getting back with the general hospital. Still living in tents, washing out of helmets etc. . . .
"These evacuation hospitals are the most marvelous things on two wheels—well, on wheels, anyway. They are actually just that. Everything is portable and can be put up or taken down in a matter of a few hours. This is so the whole thing can move every week or two in order to keep up with the front lines. They work in chains. One moves—leap-frogging ahead of several others, while they are operating, and thus keeping a continual chain of points, and so do the patients. We get a very rapid turnover of patients as most of them stay only a matter of hours—48 to 72.

"The speed with which the cases come in, are operated and sent on back to England or the States, is simply like some kind of magic. They way the patients come in from the front—I mean they come from emergency treatment that they have received by the aid men—is wonderful. And for the rest of my life, I shall hold the brave kids in the highest pedestal of my mind and heart."

No Complaints
"They will never complain of pain, never groan or moan, never ask for a thing. They always apologize for being dirty and not shaved—even though they may not have slept or eaten for weeks or days. They will always ask if there isn't someone a little worse who should be cared for first, even though they are full of shrapnel and have been waiting for days for surgery. They are all exhausted when they come in and sleep day and night. We have to wake them up for their drugs, to eat and drink or to dress their wounds. They talk to you and tell you all about their experiences whenever you have a chance to stop for a minute at their bedside. I say bed—I mean a mere army cot, with a couple of blankets thrown hastily over it.
"They smile, no matter how tough the going. Words are simply not made, are too insufficient and shallow, to even touch what everyone feels for them. And let me hasten to assure you that they are getting the most modern and up-to-date medicines. We give gobs of penicillin, which is the latest drug—superior even to the sulfa drugs. As to the nursing care—well, I'm afraid it is only a drop in the bucket. We can only do the surface things, give them a quick thing here or there, punch them with needles full of magic medicines, give the pills, change their dressings—once in a while wash their hands or face, or feet—and then they are gone and out of our sight—on to better things or back to duty.

"The tents that the nurses live in are in an apple orchard and during these lovely days of sunshine, it is a beautiful spot."

Plea For Help
"I simply must close now, as I'm dead tired. But at least I am at last doing something that I thought I'd get to do when we came over. However small it is, I only hope it helps one small particle as much as what these boys are doing for us. I only hope that those back home keep up their end of it—don't let them let down. There is still much to do and to be done—and all of it will be paid for by kids with shrapnel in their hard young bodies."

Lieut. Collins has a brother, Pvt. John Anderson Collins, who was in a contingent of American soldiers that arrived in Australia just as the United States entered the war and is carried on army records as missing in action in Java since February 12, 1942. He is a year younger than his sister. His family, believing he probably is a prisoner of the Japanese, clings to the hope that he will turn up after the war and join in a happy reunion with his sister, who is giving noble front-line service in the European conflict.

Staff Sergeant Larry Blatterman, 226 South Prospect avenue, is in the finance section of a United States Army Transportation Corps port unit stationed along the English invasion coast which has succeeded in mastering the complicated technique of international finance.

The high jinx of international banking began for the soldier clerks when huge stacks of invasion currency, printed in the United States were delivered to embarkation areas for American troops ready for the cross-channel attack. There was the maze of international exchange of converting thousands of pounds, shillings and pence into their French equivalent. Then with the return of wounded soldiers and special troops, there was the job of changing their invasion money into English currency and to further complicate operations merchant seamen and navy personnel occasionally brought in Italian invasion money and North African currency.

The members of the finance unit feel that when victory comes they will be equal to anything world currency has to offer.

Nineteen New War Dads Join Organization

E. E. Shaw, Chairman Membership Group Picks Assistants

There was a record attendance, despite the extremity of the temperature, at the regular meeting of the American War Dads Thursday evening in the Woodman-Macabee hall, highlighted by the showing of two war action pictures.

Nineteen applications for membership were read and all were accepted. The goal of the organization has been set at 100 new members by the first of October. E. E. Shaw, appointed to serve as chairman of the membership committee, selected as his assistants Phil S. Perkins, S. F. Shaw, Amos R. Beach, and A. J. Hotsenpiller.

The War Dads voted to organize and sponsor a special voluntary taxi service for soldiers who do not have transportation from the USO to the Liberty Park for Saturday night USO dances. Cars will be furnished by the members of the chapter.

Judge J. V. Kesterson commented on the rapid growth of the organization both nationally and locally, adding that the movement has been advantageous to the war effort in countless ways. Phil Perkins substantiated these remarks, paying specific tribute to the activities of the 17 growing chapters of Kansas City, where the American War Dads organization had its first conception.

W. P. Pinkepank made a plea for volunteers to furnish automobiles for use in the milk weed pod collection drive next Sunday. Several members responded.

The president, R. L. Weinrich, was elected delegate to the National Convention of War Dads to be held in Omaha, Neb., October 17-19. G. O. Hawley was chosen as alternate.

Smithton Has Historical Society Club

Organized An Auxiliary Chapter Of County Society

A number of Sedalia members of the Pettis County Historical Society, were special guests Friday evening, at eight o'clock, of the Smithton group of citizens who are forming an auxiliary chapter of the society in that community.

The newly decorated Methodist church was the place selected for this meeting, which was presided over by Prof. B. B. Ihrig, superintendent of the Smithton schools.

A musical program was presented by Mrs. Gertrude Wagner, teacher in the schools there. She was assisted by two talented Smithton girls, Misses Demand and June Harris. Several typical Indian numbers were given which were much enjoyed and a group of Negro spirituals, exemplified the moods of the deep South and the sadness of the lower South. Deep River, Steal Away, and Swing Low Sweet Chariot were expertly presented, with Mrs. Wagner explaining each number. Mrs. Wagner said that, at work or at play, the American Negro sings.

A play song Little Liza Jane, which is a New Orleans Creole melody was interesting. Other folk songs on this program were Yankee Doodle, Home Sweet Home and Listen to the Mocking Bird, which Mrs. Wagner designated as the purest form of folk music.

Professor Ihrig presented Mrs. Frank S. Leach who gave a talk about the magic development of the Pettis County Historical Society, using the word "Magic" as the theme of the talk. She then presented the Sedalia guests, each one responding with a few pertinent remarks as follows: Judge and Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman, Miss Hazel Palmer, Judge and Mrs. J. V. Kesterson, Mr. Hurlin, Mrs. Ruth Riley, Miss Bertha Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Raut, Miss Juanita Young and Mr. Elmer Winfrey.

Mrs. Leach then presented the president of the society, J. L. Curry who made the address of the evening. He told of the splendid advancement of the Society which is growing so fast that the museum at the courthouse is becoming a real "show place" for Pettis county being enjoyed by young and old. He spoke of the splendid cooperation of the good people of Sedalia as well as the county folks, and how all together we have accomplished the seemingly impossible in a short time.

Mr. Curry took occasion to thank the Smithton committee for their fine program of the evening as well as for their progressive spirit in the formation of a much appreciated and fine chapter number 1 for the county. Mr. Curry then exhibited some valuable articles recently presented to the society by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C. There were many pieces of hand tooled ivory, handsome heavily beaded Indian ceremonial garments and paraphernalia used by the early Indians. There were several ancient guns and other things of interest that were brought to Smithton from this recent gift from Washington which is one of the most noted museums of the U. S.

After the inspection of these interesting, lovely and historic articles a social was enjoyed and the Sedalians departed with best wishes for this new chapter in Smithton.

Broadway, Stanley Mindell, 618½ West Broadway, and Mrs. H. L. Webster, 413 West Cooper street, were overtime parkers Saturday. Each posted $1 cash bond at police headquarters.

Must Be Prepared Against Future Jap Aggression

of the society of nations which seek permanent peace and whose word we can take."

By removing the future menace of Japan, he said, "we are holding out the hope that other people in the Far East can be free from the same threat."

"War Well In Hand"

He said the peoples of the Philippines, Korea, Indo-China, New Guinea and the mandated islands have no wish to be Japanese slaves, and he declared we are in "the splendid process" of throwing the Japanese out.

The President said the war in the Pacific is "well in hand" but observed:

"I cannot tell you, if I knew, when the war will be over either in Europe or in the Far East or the war against Japan."

"It will be over the sooner," he said, "if the people of this country will maintain the making of the necessary supplies and ships and planes. By so doing we will hasten the day of peace. By so doing we will save our own pocketbooks and those of our children; by so doing we will run a better chance of substantial unity among the United Nations in laying more securely the foundation of a lasting peace."

He appeared tanned from his long sea voyages of recent days. Sailors and workers jammed the area before his ship to listen to his words. As he stood to speak, a cheer and applause went up from the audience. He waved a return greeting.

While the President sat aboard the vessel before time for his speech the Puget Sound navy yard band played swing tunes from a temporary bandstand thrown up on the dockside.

In his speech, Mr. Roosevelt went into detailed description of the military installations he visited in the Pacific. He told of his military conferences in Honolulu with "my old friend General Douglas MacArthur" and said he had participated in "interesting and useful" conferences accompanied by Admiral Nimitz and my own chief of staff, Admiral Leahy, and General Richardson, the commanding general of army forces in the Hawaiian area, and Admiral Halsey, commander of the third fleet."

The three days of conference, he said, "developed complete accord both in the understanding of the problem that confronts us and in the opinion as to the best method for its solution."

The chief executive interrupted his prepared text to comment on what he termed "a modern marvel"—the fact that newspapers did not break security to discuss his trip although they were in on the secret from the time he left Washington.

The President said the Hawaiian islands have been converted from a mere outpost to a major base for frontline operations in the Pacific. He brought a cheer from his audience when he declared "the islands will make possible future operations in China—make possible the recapture and independence of the Philippines, and make possible the carrying of war into the home islands of Japan itself, and its capital city of Tokyo."

Mr. Roosevelt said upon his return to Washington he intends to set up a study of Alaska and the Aleutian islands as "a place to which many veterans of this war, especially those who do not have strong roots in their own homes, can go to become pioneers."

Returning to the future of the Pacific the chief executive said: "A line for sea and air navigation following the great circle course from Puget Sound to Siberia and Northern China passes very close to the Alaskan coast and thence westward along the line of the Aleutian islands. From the point of view of national defense, therefore, it is essential that our control of this route shall be undisputed."

"Everybody in Siberia and China knows that we have no ambition to acquire land on the continent of Asia," he said. "We as a people are utterly opposed to aggression or sneak attacks—but we as a people are insistent that other nations must not under any circumstances through the foreseeable future commit such attacks against the United States."

"Therefore it is essential that we be fully prepared to prevent them for all time to come. The word and the honor of Japan cannot be trusted."

Battalion Cut Off By Nazis Is Rescued

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE WITH AN AMERICAN INFANTRY BATTALION NEAR MORTAIN, France, Aug. 12.—(AP)—This battalion was rescued this afternoon after being cut off by the German for five and one-half days on an ear-shaped hill just east of Mortain.

The Germans repeatedly had demanded that the battalion surrender, but at the blackest hour, on Wednesday night, the captain in command sent this message back to the crack SS troops surrounding his force:

"I will surrender when every one of our bullets has been fired and every one of our bayonets is sticking in a German belly."

The captain was R. A. Kerley. He told about it tonight after a relief regiment had cut its way to the battalion's isolated position.

Gave Reply Calmly The captain stood gaunt and blackbearded against the wall of an old stable that now is the battalion command post and related his reply as calmly as if he were repeating some casual street-corner conversation from his home town of Houston, Texas.

An officer standing nearby said, "You had a hell of a nerve to tell them that."

"They had a hell of a nerve to put a proposition like that up to me," replied Kerley with a grin. He and the survivors of the lost battalion came down the hill this

Cartoonist, Writer Coming Next Month

Ministers Bringing Man Who Knows China And Japan

Charles A. Wells, newspaper cartoonist, writer and world traveler, who will speak here during the week of September 3 to 8 at Smith-Cotton high school auditorium under the auspices of the Ministerial Alliance of Sedalia has seen Japanese military forces in action on many occasions. He was in China in 1931 when the initial Japanese invasion began and he followed their destructive path through most of Manchuria and North China. He has returned to Asia on other journeys since then and has frequently encountered Japanese aggression.

Charles A. Wells

During his tours, Mr. Wells has also spent considerable time in Japan and has been a close student of Japanese life and customs. This knowledge of Japanese affairs once provoked an unusual incident in China when he and a group of other foreigners were detained for not having the official papers in Japanese occupied territory. Several of the foreigners were questioned roughly. Mr. Wells, who knows a little Japanese, spoke up in an effort to explain matters. He was promptly taken from the room and conducted to the colonel's office, the doors ominously slammed behind him. Considerable time passed and the others who were being held in custody became uneasy for fear the lanky American had gotten into serious trouble. Also unusually strange sounds were emitting from behind the closed door. And what was still more puzzling, all the other Japanese officers had gradually disappeared behind those same doors. Finally, one of the foreigners decided to investigate. He opened the door on an astonishing scene. Wells was on the floor with the colonel exchanging ideas on ju jitsu and all the rest of the staff was squatting around the edge of the room sipping hot tea.

Was Sports Writer Although he began his newspaper work as a sports cartoonist and writer, Mr. Wells soon moved on into the field of editorial cartoons and feature writing which brought him opportunities for foreign travel. It was these contacts with non-Christian countries which awakened in him the desire to serve in a larger way the spiritual and moral needs of the world. Mr. Wells' cartoons and editorials on world affairs from the religious and ethical angle attracted wide attention and were taken up by syndication to the secular and religious press. Through these efforts, a wide speaking program has been making increasing demands upon his time. National religious organizations, service clubs and many kindred institutions have sought his services continually throughout the country.

Mr. Wells is adequately prepared for the conferences he is conducting on "Christ and World Need." He is a member of the Council of Foreign Relations, the Foreign Policy Association, Academy of Political Science, and other national organizations engaged in research and study of world affairs. He also owns what is generally considered one of the largest and most valuable collection of propaganda material in America. A considerable number of these pieces will be on exhibit at the conferences and the week's program.

Draws As He Speaks An attractive feature of Mr. Wells' speaking program is the use of large pastel cartoons drawn while he speaks. His wide experience in the field of pictorial art enabled him to make these cartoons a powerful addition to the spoken word.

A special meeting of the Ministerial Alliance will be held Monday evening at 8 p. m. in the basement of the First Methodist church to make final arrangements for the Wells Conference. All pastors of the Alliance with two laymen from each congregation are asked to be present for the meeting.

afternoon after being relieved by the counterattack of two other infantry battalions, one of them commanded by the colonel of this regiment, who since Monday morning had sweated in silent agony to free his trapped men.

Now they are free and are holding another hill which is quiet, and they can rest

Ex-Sedalian Wins Army Paper Award

Paper is Issued
Somewhere in South Pacific

The Thirteenth Air Force newspaper, Daily Beacon, of which Capt. Russell E. Peck, former Sedalian, is the officer in charge, was awarded first prize in a contest sponsored by the New York Newspaper Guild for the best mimeographed newspaper published by the Armed Service in the United States and overseas, and Capt. Peck has received a general's commendation for his efforts.

Capt. R. E. Peck

Captain Peck was promoted to that rank from first lieutenant, effective July 16. His wife, the former Miss Louise Short, and their two-year-old son, Ricky, are living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Short, 1015 South Ohio avenue, for the duration. His mother, Mrs. Ernest Peck, of St. Louis formerly resided here at 1208 South Carr avenue.

In Time for Breakfast
Overseas ten months, Capt. Peck is a special service officer for the 13th Air Force Service Command.

The Daily Beacon, published somewhere in the South Pacific, reaches its many military readers "in time for breakfast" daily. Having direct wire service it carries battlefield reports from the various war theatres, highlight home front news and baseball scores. The news dispatches are from the Associated Press, Army News Service and War Department Camp Newspaper Service. The mimeographed Daily Beacon consists of from four to six pages of tabloid size.

In addition to his responsibilities in supervising the publication of the air force paper, Capt. Peck makes arrangements for USO shows, movie schedules, athletic activities, and other morale building entertainment.

Theatre From Salvage
One theatre in his area was constructed entirely of salvage material. The curtains for the stage were fashioned from cargo chutes of blue and gold, the Army Air Force colors.

Not all his overseas duties are of peaceful variety, for Capt. Peck has two battle stars for engagements in the Pacific.

He had R. O. T. C. training at the University of Missouri and before entering service August 20, 1942, was engaged in Red Cross work for five years, his last position, while living in Washington, D. C., being an assistant director of military and naval welfare service, training field directors for overseas duty. He attended Officers' Training School at Miami Beach, Fla., also trained at Fort Meade, Md., and was stationed at Blackland Army Air Field, Waco, Tex., before going overseas.

Sees Sedalians
Capt. Peck is stationed in the Pacific at the same base as Lieut. Col. Edward Connor of Sedalia. He also has seen Sgt. David Gross of Sedalia over there, and has met Paul Edwards of the Seabees while on trips to some other installations in the South Pacific.

In a letter of commendation to Capt. Peck written from Headquarters, Thirteenth Air Force, Somewhere in the South Pacific, Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett, commanding, wrote, "I wish to convey to you my pride and gratification for the manner in which you supervised, assisted and encouraged the staff of the Daily Beacon. The result of your efforts is reflected in this outstanding accomplishment (winning the award) which contributed immeasurably to the maintenance of high morale of this Air Force."

NOT WHERE IT SEEMS

The CAUSE of a pain may not be at the point of the pain. Many people cannot understand why we treat the spine for a pain in the arm or leg or stomach.

Irritation of a nerve along its pathway manifests as pain in any place in the area supplied by that nerve.

I know a case where after a man's leg was amputated above the knee, and it still felt like his foot hurt him, even though it was gone. The nerve was irritated in the stump and another operation was necessary to locate the nerve and free it from the scar tissue. Irritation at the stump caused the pain, irritation at the spine, at the point where it emerges could do the same thing; it could be in the cord close to the brain or in the brain; irritation anywhere in the pathway of a nerve can cause it. Pain is not at the point where it seems to hurt, pain is perceived in the brain and we interpret it at the point reached by a given nerve, cut the nerve and there is no pain.

The real cause of a diseased diseased organ and any method part may be far remote from the of healing which does not look for the real cause, wherever it is, and remove it, is not a scientific healing method.

Chiropractors aim to locate the fundamental cause and remove it, why not try it?

Jr. Legion To Meet Warsaw Here Today

Benton County Team Makes First Visit To Local Park This Year

The Warsaw Merchants will invade the local baseball diamond at Liberty Park today to meet the Junior American Legion team. The game is scheduled to be called at 2:30 p. m. sharp by umpire Lloyd Waters.

This will be the first time the two teams have met this year so the Legion boys do not know what to expect. They do not have any fear of this afternoon's contest since they seem to be in a winning streak. Two weeks ago the Legion trounced the La Monte Country Team 29 to 3 and last Sunday they beat the Marshall Merchants by a score of 2 to 0.

James Cooney, a left hander will start on the mound for the Legion with Schumaker on the receiving end at the plate. The Warsaw team has not sent in its line-up.

The line-up for the Legion will be: Thomas, SS; Harman, RF; Livengood, 1st B; Thompson, LF; May, 3rd B; Schumaker, C; Cooney, P; Herrick, 2nd B; Waters, CF; with Capes and Johnson in reserve.

Merchants Go To Jeff City For 2 Games

Play Prison This Morning; Tweedies In Afternoon Game

The Sedalia Merchants journey to Jefferson City today where they will play two games, one in the morning at the State Penitentiary and in the afternoon meet the Tweedies Shoe Co. club. It will be the second time the Sedalia team has met these two teams.

In their first meeting the Sedalia Merchants lost to the Sedalia team by a score of 8 to 4, while in the afternoon game they will endeavor to repeat an early season victory when they won over the Capital City team 7 to 6. Each year the Merchants journey to the Capital City and play these two teams, and each season.

Ozzie Sherman will probably pitch the morning game for Sedalia with Weller behind the plate on the receiving end. In the afternoon contest "Loudy" Green will be on the mound for the Merchants with Humes on the receiving end of the battery.

Browns Make It 3-In-A-Row Over Yankees

McQuinn Paces The League Leaders With Two Circuit Drives

NEW YORK, Aug. 12 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns made it three out of four from the New York Yankees today and their 11th out of their last 12, by defeating the New Yorkers 8-3 before 13,465 paid admissions.

George McQuinn paced the league-leaders with two homers and a single to drive in five runs. Each of his round trippers, one in the first frame and the other in the ninth, came with one man on base.

Jack Kramer went the distance for the Browns, scattering eight hits, for his 12th victory against 10 defeats.

The Browns got two quick runs off Walt Duglielmo, Yankees' rookie right-hander, in the first inning on McQuinn's two-run homer, but the world champions tied the score with third tallies in the second and third.

Nine men batted in the seventh as the Browns broke the deadlock with five hits good for four runs and drove Duglielmo from the mound. They added two more in the ninth on McQuinn's second homer.

The Yankees scored their final run in the eighth when Johnny Lindell drove in his second run of the game with a single which scored George Starnweiss. Frankie Crosetti batted in the other Yankee run.

The defeat was Duglielmo's 10th of the year and put the Yankees nine and a half games off the pace.

Sport Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

LAST week in discussing the possibilities of the American League with our good friend R. F. "Dick" Rohn, a question arose over some of the teams in the league and what had happened to them. The remark was made "Uncle Sam may have something to say about the pennant winner."

By that remark it was brought out that Uncle Sam in making his selection of soldiers, might get into the lineups of several of the teams and take a few here and there which might wreck the club from which he makes his selection. While we are all guessing on the A. L. race, and of course we here in Sedalia are more interested and pulling for the St. Louis Browns, let's look at some facts.

Uncle Sam is really the one who is making the guessing good. He even had "Luke" Sewell, manager of the Browns making a statement, that he couldn't tell anything on the race, because he might borrow some of his own players, if he so decided. Take a couple of good players from any team and you have practically crippled it.

A good example is the Detroit Tigers. With Greenberg and Wakefield in the service the team has turned from a good club to a fair one. They are still in the first division, however. Then there is Cleveland, with Bobby Fellers and Roy Mack absent from the lineup, and it has likewise dropped from a good to a fair club. Still fighting to get out of the second division.

Boston now in second position, is scheduled for the skids. They are battling with the Browns for the pennant and in the shadows, but not quite there. Six players with the left team are subject to call to service any day now.

Hughson, the first pitcher to win 18 games this season, left last Friday to help Uncle Sam in the Navy department. He is a good boy for any team to lose and with several others on call, anything can happen.

EVERYBODY seems to be asking what is wrong with the New York Yankees, a club which for several years at this time of the season has the American League pennant clinched. Now the club is having a struggle to remain in the first division.

There really is nothing wrong—EXCEPT—Joe Di Maggio, Joe Gordon, and Bill Dickey are doing chores for Uncle Sam, and they are greatly missed in the big city of New York. Is there any wonder the Yanks aren't doing so well, as a matter-of-fact they are actually doing better than anticipated with their losses.

For instance take Verne Stephens and George McQuinn from the St. Louis Browns, what would happen—You make the guess.

On the other hand some say what would happen to the Cardinals if Uncle should decide on the loan of some men from the roster. Well the Cards at present have a lead of better than seven games, and couldn't be hurt too much. On the other hand the Cardinals have one of the finest farm systems and can call from practically any of their farm teams to fill most any vacancy which might occur.

SINCE the playground activities have come to an end at the Smith-Cotton high school, some of the football players have turned their attention to a possible early practice session before school opens. But boys the State High School Association kinda frowns on such practice which is supervised by the high school coach—So-o-o—there'll be none of that.

But just a hint, some of the "old timers" who have been home on furloughs and leaves recently said there isn't any rule which says the boys who are interested in getting in some exercise and working the summer fat off can't borrow some school equipment and do their own practicing.

Coach John Ligon informed me Saturday, he couldn't supervise, nor could any of the assistant coaches help the boys in practice. What they do before they come under school supervision, which starts Monday, September 4—is their own business. However, he hopes if the boys do start any practice sessions, these sessions will be of mild form. He doesn't want any material to get hurt before the season for practice starts—September 4.

Ligon further said he would issue equipment to the Letter-men of last year on Saturday, September 3, and on Monday, new material which reports will be given equipment, after which the practice sessions will get underway.

Dick Welles Handicap To Appleknocker

Pensive Broke Tenth And Last In Event; Sixth Straight Loss

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 (AP)—Pensive, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was defeated for the sixth consecutive time today as Appleknocker swept to victory in the $17,850 Dick Welles handicap at Washington Park.

Pensive, coupled with Miss Keeneland as the Calumet Farm entry broke tenth and last in the mile event, but finished fourth with a routing burst of speed, three and three-quarter lengths behind the winner. The colt was seventh coming into the stretch and was gaining with every jump. Pensive, top-weighted with 124 pounds, was ridden byockey Conn McCree for the first time since finishing second in the Belmont stakes last June 3.

Appleknocker, a handsome brown gelding which belies his name, not only won his first important prize, but soundly trounced several leading candidates for the American Derby two weeks hence.

Owned by the Texas combination of R. A. Coward and Card Dupuy, Appleknocker had a neck to spare over Allen Drumheller's Sirde while three lengths farther back was Hyman Friedlander's Harriet Sue, the early pace-setter.

Coupled with Doggone in the wagering, Appleknocker paid $9, $3.80 and $3, while Sirde was $3.60 and $3, and Harriet Sue $4.60. The winner's net on the race was $12,350 and it was his second victory in a row.

Miss Germain Retains Her Western Title

Defeated Phyllis Otto 5-4 Saturday In The Final Rounds

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 (AP)—Playing each shot with grim determination, Dorothy Germain defeated Phyllis Otto 5 and 4 today to retain her crown as Women's Western Amateur champion. The Philadelphia star thus became the seventh player in the tournament's 44-year history to capture the crown twice in succession and the first to do so since Mrs. Opal J. Hill impressed the sports world with her sweep in 1931 and 1932.

Miss Germain, 20-year-old Beaver college junior, was only three over par for the long Onwentsia course for the 32 holes required to win, while her Omaha, Neb., opponent, trying desperately to regain her putting confidence, was 10 over.

What had been a close, intense match in the morning round was transformed into a near rout on the first nine of the afternoon as Miss Germain uncorked her typical blitz method and shot a one-under-par 37 for a 4-up lead at the 27-hole juncture.

Miss Germain, bringing her powerful long game into action to whip up birdies on six of the 14 long holes played, halved the 28th, 29th and 30th holes with pars, clipped six feet and dropped the putt for a birdie win on the 445-yard 31st to go 5-up and then split the 32nd with a bogey 4 to end the match.

Relatives Learn of Mission in Which Son Became Prisoner

Sgt. and Mrs. Herbert S. Cox, U. S. Marine Corps, formerly of Sedalia, now of Crane, Ind., where Sgt. Cox is stationed at the Marine Barracks, have received a letter from Lt. Frank E. Wolf, pilot of the plane of which their son, Staff Sgt. Herbert S. Cox, was a crew member. Sgt. Cox is now a war prisoner. Lieut. Wolf, who was not piloting on the day the plane was attacked by the enemy, writes to tell of the events of that day, as he has learned them.

He asks the parents of Sgt. Cox to convey the news to the latter's wife. Mrs. Cox is here from Crane to be with her daughter-in-law, who gave birth to a daughter, Donna Sue, at the Bothwell hospital, April 11. She is also visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harold Fricke, 114 West Fourteenth street.

The letter in part, follows: "Herb was extremely well-liked by everyone, and most of all by me. He was the best engineer in our squadron, and perhaps the group, and his temporary loss is felt by all.

Knew Aircraft

"His knowledge of aircraft was vast, and through him I acquired a considerable amount of the same: things which would have been too late to learn through experience.

He was a fine upstanding young man. At times very quiet, but usually ready for some fun. We had many good times together, and I feel his loss very much. He is a fitting example of the America we are fighting for.

"The mission he was on that day was one of our most successful. They were attacked by fighters on the way back from the target, and quite a fight went on. From the intelligence reports and from others on the same mission I have gathered the following information:

Attacked by Germans

"They were flying at 20,000 feet on way back when attacked by fighters over Germany. The plane Herb was in dropped out of formation and was falling behind. All four engines were running, but the ship was losing altitude. There were four 'chutes seen coming from the plane. From the position Herb was flying, it is very probable that his was one of them. I feel sure it was.

"About that time, the fighters attacked again; and during the ensuing fight, they lost sight of Herb's plane, which had glided into the clouds. The plane was under control when last seen, and I feel sure all eventually got out. But I am convinced that Herb was one of the first four seen.

"With this in mind, I feel sure you will hear from him, from a Prisoner of War Camp, in the next few weeks. That is why I talk of his temporary loss."

Preference For Repairs

David H. Powell, district director of the Federal Housing Administration for the western Missouri district, announced today that during the present grave emergency in the lumber industry, his office at the direction of the WPB would give preference ratings to home owners needing lumber for repair work only in extreme emergency cases. The FHA office acts as agent of the WPB in processing preference ratings for critical building materials.

Applications for emergency ratings to obtain lumber for extreme emergency repairs should be made to the Kansas City, Mo., FHA office, which serves the western district of Missouri, on Form WPB-2896, which can be obtained at that office. They must show that the extent of the damage is such that the dwelling is unfit for use unless repaired.

Mr. Powell urges home owners to refrain from attempting to get ratings for any but the most essential emergency needs. Direct and indirect military requirements for lumber are so high, and total essential lumber demand so far in excess of supply, that all unnecessary use of lumber must be curtailed, Mr. Powell said.

Who says it can't happen here?

Why you'll get hurt if gas rationing fails!

WE WHO HAVE every reason for wanting to sell you all the gasoline you can use tell you that there is a shortage... an acute shortage right here in the Central States. We also tell you that you have every reason to make the rationing plan work—in your own self-interest, as well as for patriotic reasons and for the good old American spirit of fair play.

You know the armed forces have first call on the available supply—will get what they need. You wouldn't have it otherwise. The demands are terrific. It takes three tons of gas to "deliver" a one-ton bomb. And simply to train a pilot requires enough gas to last the average car 18 years.

After military needs are met, there simply is not enough gasoline left to keep civilian cars running "as usual." The only way to make what's left go around is to stick to the rationing plan. Rationing is designed to see that everybody gets his needed share of the available supply.

Unless motorists do a better job of sticking to the plan than they have to date, there will surely come a time when some people won't be able to get their share. It could be you!

If any considerable number of necessary drivers—war workers, farmers, doctors, truckers—find themselves unable to buy needed gas, then more stringent regulations will have to be adopted. Then it might well be necessary to ration dealers the way it has been done in the East.

You don't want to see a lot of gasoline stations with "No gas today" signs—as our eastern friends have—do you? You don't want to join a long line of cars following a gasoline truck around so you can find the station that is going to get some gas, do you? Then play fair and square with the rationing plan.

Do this: Don't apply for more gas than you really need. Get into a ride-sharing club and stick to it. Endorse all your gas coupons now—don't give any away. Don't take extra gas or coupons from anyone.

Red Cross Corner

This column is going to be devoted to one specific subject today: the urgent, pressing need for more Red Cross staff assistants. Yes, we have a Staff Assistant Corps. A good one. Our S. A.'s have been, and are being faithful and efficient, but the work of our office is not static. It does not increase just so far, and then stand still. The volume increases steadily, and will continue to increase until long after we have won the peace.

The Pettis County Chapter is fortunate in having an executive secretary of great ability; in having an assistant whose record during these summer months is an excellent one. But the Pettis County Chapter must have staff assistants, and must have them now.

The work of the Red Cross staff assistant, mechanical and routine though it is much of the time, is just as often interesting, and frequently exciting.

There is a true story that concerns two Sedalia girls who are old standbys in the ARC office:

A Pettis county serviceman had wired his commanding officer for a furlough extension. His mother was seriously ill, not expected to live through the day. The telegram was delayed. Another was sent. Still no answer. The soldier, worn out with grief and disappointment left the Red Cross office for the station. The staff assistants were disappointed too.

In the office of staff assistants heard the noon train whistle into town. They could picture the soldier climbing on, and going away, not knowing whether his mother would live through the day or not. Then a telegraph boy came into the office. One of the girls grabbed the wire and ripped it open. It was from the field director. The soldier was granted his extension. Again the train whistled. The other girl got to the telephone and called the ticket agent. She heard the train whistle.

"Can you call Private Johnny Doboy please," she grasped. "This is the Red Cross office." "Sure thing," answered the ticket agent. A pause. Then the voice of the soldier. "We just got a wire," the staff assistant told him. "It's all right. You've got your extension." For the last time they heard the train whistle, as it pulled out of town. Once again the Red Cross was at his side.

What are the qualifications of a staff assistant. The real question is: What are your qualifications as an American citizen? You can learn to be a staff assistant. If you can type, good. If you can't type, so what? Some of our best assistants have picked up the hunt and peck system, and can handle any of the stenographic work. Do you know the alphabet? That's the first requisite of being a filing clerk. Can you pick up the telephone receiver and answer it? We have three telephones in our office. They have to be answered. Finally, are you at all interested in the problems of the armed forces of your country? Because it is with these problems, and their numerous ramifications, that your job as a staff assistant will deal. We who are Red Cross staff assistants, will welcome you into our corps.

Please call Mrs. Arthur Hoffmann, and discuss with her the importance of this work. Her number is 3046.

Art Shop, 207 South Ohio, phone 603, knows and has everything the bedimmed little tottler or basset dweller needs to keep him warm, comfortable and happy through summer, fall, and winter. Here you'll find sweaters, scarves, caps, bontees, robes, blankets, and a novelty line of toys.

Your car has got to last for the duration—it pays to baby it! Drive in to Bryant Motor Co., 2nd and Kentucky and let us check it thoroughly and make the necessary changes for smooth winter driving. Have your tires checked at the same time.

Don't let that mid-season "let-down" feeling slip into your appearance. Make an appointment Monday with Mabel Church's Jay-Dee Beauty Shop, downstairs at Sedalia Drug Co., and let our expert beauticians enhance your loveliness with one of the new fall hairdos. Beauty consultant at your service.

Dine in cool comfort these hot August evenings and eat the best food in town in pleasant surroundings. The Hotel Bothwell Coffee Shop takes pride in serving only the best food obtainable, cooked in a delicious manner and efficiently served.

If your favorite chair has acquired that tired, worn look that comes from long use, don't despair! You can keep the chair and save the good appearance of the room by bringing it in to the Bryan-Paulus Awning Co., 604 S. Ohio, for repair and a new cover.

We invite you to see our unusually large collection of exquisite birth stone rings. Here at Zurcher's Jewelry Store, 225 S. Ohio, we've prided ourselves on our selection of precious and semi-precious stones. Come in soon and see our complete collection of jewelry for all occasions.

ANOTHER PROBLEM
PERHAPS... BUT AT THE COST OF COM- PLETING THEIR MISSION.

ENEMY FORMATIONS WAITING ABOVE THE TARGET AREA COULD PLAY HAVOC WHEN WE LEVELED OFF FOR OUR BOMB RUN.

Some Advance On Selected Stocks
BY VICTOR EURANK
NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(P)—Selected stocks continued to edge forward in today's brief market after a week devoted to general recovery.
Heavy buying of low-priced motors in the forepart of the week faded by Wednesday when junior utilities took over the leadership.
Denials that an important investment concern was taking over a sizable portion of one automotive concern whose stock had been the speediest sprinter served to chill enthusiasm for the "penny" racers and reports and rumors pertaining to other companies were questioned.
The come-back of the "blue chips" was credited partly to a change-of-heart regarding reconversion in industry should the European war end suddenly. Good earnings statements were helpful though.
The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .1 of a point at 54.9 and on the week showed an advance of .7 net. Dealings were relatively quiet throughout, transfers of 374,470 shares being one of the smallest of the past two months. They compared with 463,130 last Saturday.
Railway bonds improved.

Grain Market In Unsettled Session
CHICAGO, Aug. 12—(P)—Liquidation of rye, forcing December and May contracts to new seasonal lows at times, unsettled other grain futures markets today.
Futures moved upward in early trade on continued dry weather in the Eastern corn belt, rains having failed to materialize overnight.
Rye liquidation followed a fall in the cotton market. Favorable war news, and the fact that harvest operations are becoming general in the northwest, discouraged wheat holders. Oats were weakened by reports that Canadian oats were taken to the Eastern market from the Midwest, and on the Canadian export tax reduction 2 cents a bushel today.
Wheat closed 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher than the previous finish. September $1.53 1/4, oats were off to 1/4 up. September 68 1/2, rye was 1/4 to 1 cent lower, September $1.02 1/4, and barley was down 1/4 to 3/4, September $1.07 1/2.

President In Surprise Visit To Aleutians

Thrilled And Gratified At What Had Been Done

ALUTIAN ISLAND BASE, Alaska, Aug. 3.—(Delayed)—(P)—President Roosevelt paid this Aleutian base a surprise visit today and, in turn, was surprised by what he saw. He said he was thrilled and gratified.

It was the President's first trip to the Aleutians, made on his first Pacific traveling of the war. He came by warship, by the way of Honolulu. The chief executive praised members of the armed forces participating in the Aleutian campaign and construction program. He said they had driven out the enemy and had built new military, naval and air bases on once remote, barren islands in an incredibly short time.

Accompanied by Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher, commander of the North Pacific, the President made a tour of the island's installations.

He expressed a wish that the

To Try Accused At Boonville

DURHAM, N. C., Aug. 11.—(P)—State Solicitor William H. Murdock announced Friday night that Edward Martin, 24-year-old Charlotte youth charged with the slaying of his grandmother, Mrs. Edward M. Jewett, will be tried in Boonville, Mo.

Martin was arrested May 15 and Mrs. Jewett had been reported missing from a Boonville hotel May 10, two days after she had been driven there by Martin from North Carolina.

Mrs. Jewett's body was recovered from a lake at Chapel Hill. Murdock said Missouri officials probably would prepare extradition papers for the prisoner within the next two weeks.

people back home could see what had been done.

The Japanese, he said, would never again be able to threaten North America with an Alaskan invasion.

Mr. Roosevelt's impromptu remarks were made at an informal lunch at an enlisted men's mess, where he made a noon stop during the inspection tour.

He said he considered some parts of the United States overpopulated and predicted that many soldiers and sailors would seek new homes in Alaska after the war. The territory's great size and known resources, he added, invited settlers.

Not Discuss War Plans
The President did not discuss any specific war plans for this or any other theaters. Neither did he comment on the national political campaign, in which he is the national Democratic nominee for a fourth term.

All of those eating lunch with the chief executive—except the navy commandant and the army post commander—were enlisted soldiers, sailors and marines. A proportionate number of Negroes were mixed throughout the long mess hall.

The chatty, smiling commander-in-chief ate from the navy regulation metal serving tray. He was seated between two youthful privates first class—a red-haired marine from Arkansas and a trim soldier from New Jersey.

William Goff, the 19-year-old marine whose father is foreman of the ice company at Batesville, Ark., conversed easily with the President, in response to questions.

The 20-year-old soldier, Ferdinand Rutscher, of 19 Lindsley Ave., Irvington, N. J., provided and lighted an after lunch cigarette for the President. He grinned happily when his flint lighter worked on the first try.

Nurses At Attention
Another member of the armed forces singled out by the President during the day for special notice was a navy nurse. She was Lieut. (jg) Margaret Richards whose family, formerly of Baltimore, now lives at 48-51 Forty-Third St., Woodside, Long Island, N. Y.

Mr. Roosevelt stepped the line of inspection tour automobiles in front of the navy dispensary, where the blue-uniformed nurses stood at attention with other officers and men of the hospital unit.

Lieutenant Richards, called to the side of the President's automobile, answered questions concerning operation of the dispensary.

The President asked her if she was happy and she said she was. Mr. Roosevelt and his party, which included Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the commander-in-chief, came north in one of the navy's cruisers.

The presidential party, in addition to Admiral Leahy, included Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, the President's physician; Major General Edwin M. Watson, military aide, and Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, naval aide.
